ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A branching source address in an absolute address representation and a branching destination address in a relative address representation are captured from a CPU so that the branching source address and the branching destination address are output tot he trace bus.